This introduction to practicing literary theory is a reader consisting of extracts from critical analyses, largely by 20th century Anglo-American literary critics, set around major literary texts that undergraduate students are known to be familiar with. It is specifically targeted to present literary criticism through practical examples of essays by literary theorists themselves, on texts both within and outside the literary canon. Four example essays are included for each author/text presented. Never HIGHLIGHT a Book Again Includes all testable terms, concepts, persons, places, and events. The idea for this conference came from a meeting of the IFIP (International Federation for Information Processing) Technical Committee for Information Systems (TC8) in Guimares, Portugal in June 2005. Our goal is to build an IFIP forum among the different Information Systems Communities of TC8 dealing with the increasing important area of Enterprise Information Systems. In this particular meeting the committee members intensively discussed the innovative and unique characteristics of Enterprise Information Systems as scientific sub-discipline. Hence, in this meeting it was decided by the TC8 members that the IFIP TC8 First International Conference on Research and Practical Issues of Enterprise Information Systems (CONFENIS 2006) would be held in April 2006 in Vienna, Austria. Dr. Li Xu (USA) and Dr. A Min Tjoa (IFIP TC8) were assigned to propose a concept for this conference in order to establish an IFIP platform for EIS researchers and practitioners in the field to share experience, and discussing opportunities and challenges. We are very pleased therefore to have this conference organised by the help of the Austrian Computer Society (OCG). OCG supports the idea of this conference due to the urgent need of research and dissemination of new techniques in this key area. We received 180 papers from more than 30 countries for CONFENIS and the Program Committee eventually selected xx papers or extended abstracts, making an acceptance rate of xx% of submitted papers. Each paper was thoroughly reviewed by at least two qualified reviewers. Europa wordt geconfronteerd met de grootste golf van migratie sinds de Tweede Wereldoorlog. Patrick Kingsley deed voor The Guardian verslag van de vluchtelingen crisis. Hij bezocht zeventien verschillende landen en reisde vele routes mee met de vluchtelingen. De nieuwe odyssee is zijn ongeëvenaarde verslag van wie deze reizigers zijn. Het gaat over waarom ze blijven komen en hoe ze dat doen. Het gaat over de smokkelaars die hen op weg helpen, en de kustwacht die hen redt aan de andere kant van de zee. Over de vrijwilligers die hun eten brengen, de mensen die hen huisvesten, en de grenswacht die hen buiten de deur probeert te houden. En over de politici die wegkijken. "The Odyssey of Heart" vol I, "Birth of the Sojourners" is a highly literate and dramatic poetic work composed in spirit and form of the English neo-classical tradition that employs, as its three principal characters, the voice of the Sojourner caught in a conflict between the Demonic and Sacred voices in the Heart. The alternation of these voices moves the work swiftly along with contrast, comparison and an attempt at reconciliation. It is not merely a drama observed from a distance, but sets the reader upon a trial of reflection and a practical Odyssey of their own, promising many hours of fine, aesthetic appreciation and communion with the issues of modern civilization. With a sense for what has gone terribly wrong, the Sojourner agonizes over the temptations of the Demonic voice while striving to live at peace with the Sacred voice, contemplating the systems of the world, the brutality of injustice, and the pain involved in losing one's innocence. The "Birth of the Sojourners" concerns a struggle to reconcile what appears as a fantasy vision of the moral universe with the realities of human nature, of life, and the powerful forces of political and intellectual corruption in the world and the heart of humanity. It is a contrast of the real laws at work, set against the ideal laws at work in the heart and can be understood as the contention of inhumane values with humane values and the agony that this conflict involves for the Sojourner. As such, the work appears to ask the question: "What would the vision of a humane world look like, as set against how the world is presently constituted?" Ultimately, the Sojourner arrives at a perception that the corrupting forces in the world actually exist in one's self, and that overcoming these forces involves a clearer understanding and acceptance of the limitations of human nature without abandoning authentic, humane values. There is no metaphysical ploy here, no "deus ex-machina," to resolve the conflict; only human nature and the potentials of human nature as demonstrated in actual experience, albeit evidently overweighted to the Demonic voice with a glimmering promise of an alternative heard in the Sacred voice. Through this struggle the Sojourner transmutes the critical tendencies of the Demonic to the humane values of the Sacred. As both of these dispositions are natural, we see them brought to life through their own voice, cultivating the supporting actions that mature and embolden these dispositions, eventually resulting in affirmations of the better angels of our nature. It has been asserted that few themes could offer a more compelling subject for poetic composition, and few literary endeavors more rewarding or universally relevant than a careful treatment of this theme, both aesthetically and socially. It is in this spirit that we recall the words of Thomas Carlyle: "For your nobler minds, the publishing of some such Work of Art, in one or the other dialect, becomes almost a necessity. For what is it properly, but an altercation with the Devil, before you begin honestly Fighting him?" The author is a BA graduate of Metropolitan State University in St. Paul, MN with a concentration on Cultural Criticism. One scholar's recommendation: "I am an avid reader who couldn't put this work of art down. It is so well written and at the same time evokes so many emotions. It is incredible and engrossing. There is in Meissen's writing complexity of character and an embellishment of the old making what one reads endearing. It is rich and sumptuous with detailed thought. Often we are put into Greek Tragedy. Sometimes we are blending Medieval Epic with Modern Theology. We are even pulled into a large kind of Giorgione painting filled with mystery, hesitation, and dragons. It is a great piece of musical poetry to be read and sung out loud. I urge you to read, struggle, think, and live his writing!!" ~Daniel Lloyd. Independent Scholar, Composer/Pianist. Mpls, MN. Emphasizing the practical applications and the history of mathematics, MATHEMATICS: A PRACTICAL ODYSSEY illustrates to students how mathematics is relevant to their education, human history, and culture. Johnson and Mowry effectively demonstrate how learning the algebraic concepts presented allows students to understand more about logic, probability, statistics, finance, geometry, matrices, logarithms, calculus, and many other topics.
